Catelli Holding and GEA Process Engineering continue co-operation

GEA Process Engineering (the engineering segment of GEA Group) and Catelli Holding have been in close discussions for more than a year to explore strategic collaboration alternatives. The basis for this has been a shared interest in getting the two businesses closer together and thereby harvest benefits. GEA Process Engineering recognizes Catelli Holding and its business leadership within the fruit and vegetable processing areas.

After a number of different alternatives have been reviewed, discussed and negotiated, the complexity of a legally structured collaboration has unfortunately proven to be too great at present. Although a regret to both parties, the discussions and agreement not to proceed has been made in an amicable atmosphere.

Meanwhile, confirming the strategic value of the established close relationship, GEA Process Engineering and Catelli Holding will continue to explore opportunities for strengthening the cooperation within specific product and market segments.
